NEWS from LPHWM

We have had a busy few months and organised the following CPD workshops:

- In October with PHE we organised the 'Practical Application of Health Economics in the workplace' workshop. The day provided a greater understanding of Health economics and looked at the various tools available.
- In November we supported the Modern Slavery: Health Engagement Event. The event looked at Modern Slavery through a Public Health and Health Inequalities Lens. There was a great range of speakers such as PHE, Anti-Slavery Network, Barnardo's, WM Police, Fire Service and Staffline who discussed their involvement with the agenda.
- In November we organised the 'Basics in Public Health' workshop. The purpose of the workshop was to provide a broad overview of Public Health. The workshop covered Public Health topic areas such as health protection, workforce development, and wider determinants of health, data and MECC. Due to the high demand, we will be organising another workshop in the New Year.

Presentations from our events are available on the learning for Public health website. Click the link to access these documents.
